Levies urged to rescue area flood-control project

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

The average homeowner would pay $30 in Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga and $5 in the rest of the West End under a plan unveiled Friday to rescue the Cucamonga Creek flood-control project.

In addition to the one-time levy, major landowners near the Deer Creek leg of the project would stand ready to lend $1.9 million to make up the balance of the $5.9 million needed to ensure continued federal funding.

City and county officials and developers met at Ontario City Hall to review the rough plan that will be presented to the county Board of Supervisors on Monday in a race against the clock.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers wants a commitment on the first $1.8 million by Tuesday on the local share of funding before going ahead with the last $35 million in federal funds to finish the flood-control project, in which $100 million has already been invested.

County Administrative Officer Robert Rigney called the plan an "eptc-making kind of a program" resulting from cooperation by the county, cities and major landowners.

The plan has the informal support of the five West End cities and Fontana, which together cover Zone 1 of the county Flood Control District.

Some details of the plan remain to be ironed out, but government officials and developers have reached the basic agreement on what both wanted — a way to come up with the local dollars needed to finish the project.

The arrangement was worked out in a series of meetings by a small committee of government and development representatives in the last week.

Al Reid, assistant county administrative officer, said city managers in the West End recommended the assessment program to raise $4 million. The Board of Supervisors would levy the charges on behalf of the Flood Control District.

He noted the amount of assessments for the typical homeowner, one with

Under state law, the assessments may be levied once without voter approval.

Charges would vary with the size of the property and its type of land use, with commercial and industrial lands having higher rates than residential. a lot covering 7,200 square feet, is "subject to a lot of verification."

Property owners in Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga would pay a higher rate because their cities will receive a more direct benefit from construction of the Deer Creek leg.

Reid said, "The private sector would have to raise the remaining $1.9 million by some way, shape or form."

Rigney has said the county can come up with the local funding share initially by fund transfers. However, the county's own fiscal troubles and a state law preventing more county loans to the Flood Control District keep the county from picking up the tab without an assured method of repayment by June 30, 1982, the end of next fiscal year, to balance the books.

The money for the Cucamonga Creek flood-control project was originally intended to come from assessments imposed last year but repealed by the Board of Supervisors after protests by owners of large holdings of agricultural and vacant land.

A variety of arrangements will be considered under which the major landowners would make the $1.9 million available.

Maggie O'Donnell is an assistant to Ralph Lewis of Lewis Homes, one of the major landowners. Lewis chaired the committee meetings in the past week, and O'Donnell Friday explained the role of developers in the financing plan.

By the end of March 1982, major landowners will make interim financing available, possibly through letters of credit upon which the county Flood Control District could draw the $1.9 million, she said.

She said, "The district has agreed to use the landowner credit last, if it is necessary to use it at all, and to repay it within a five-year period."

Joe DiIorio, a partner in the R.C. Land Co., said his firm, Lewis Homes and Daon Corp. are the three major landowners so far committed to the agreement on $1.9 million.

Upland council struggles with budget proposal

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

The Upland City Council struggled to make ends meet on a proposed $19.7 million budget with an estimated 6.5 percent deficit during a special public hearing Monday.

The budget, up from the $18.7 million adopted for the 1980-81 fiscal year, has already been drawn four different times in an effort to keep up with the latest information filtering down from the state level, according to city Finance Director Tim Brown.

"As it is, we're still guessing as to what the state will end up doing," said Brown. "We've been trying to go on the best information available."

He said total revenue is estimated at $18.4 million, resulting in a $1.3 million deficit.

Some of the sources of revenue experiencing the largest cuts include property taxes, down almost 24 percent from $2,520,161 in 1980-81 to an estimated $1,923,446 in the proposed budget. Federal and state grants are expected to drop 64 percent and the city's portion of state-shared revenues is expected to drop by more than $240,000 from last year's figures.

City department heads and council members struggled to cut corners where possible. So far, they are planning on reducing the city staff of 275 by only two people. And that, said Brown, will be done through attrition, where individuals who leave or retire will not be replaced.

"Right now, it doesn't look as if anyone is going to lose their job because of this," he said.

There may be substantial reshuffling, however, including some pay cuts for reclassified workers.

The increased restraints on spending come at a time when the city is growing, and many department heads bemoaned the threat of cutbacks when they said they need additional personnel just to keep up with the growing workload.

One of the departments hardest hit has been general services, responsible for maintenance of the city's sewers, streets and trees.

According to the proposed budget, about eight staff members would be transferred from the department, many who would be transferred to the parks department to help care for the city's growing recreational areas.

General Services Director Ken Hoover told the council the proposed cutbacks could result in serious consequences for the city.

It would mean cutting back from three tree trimming teams to one, he said. Thus, the only trimming that could be done would be that needed for safety reasons, and pruning for the trees' health and other reasons would have to be bypassed.

Mayor John McCarthy expressed concern with possible increased liability if the trees are not properly cared for, and Councilman Frank Carpenter said he wasn't convinced the cutback would result in actual savings.

"For years we have dictated to developers to put trees in for our city," he said, "and now the estimates run that we have more than 57,000.

"We want one crew of three men to take care of 57,000 trees?"

Hoover also said there would be an additional 40 acres of parkways and other city-owned land his department would be responsible for in the coming year.

He estimated it would take another 4.5 workers to be able to maintain the almost 200 acres of land at the same level of quality as in past years. If his department were cut, it would be even more difficult, he said.

The national average for maintenance workers is about 4 to 5 acres per man, according to Hoover. He said the city is currently working at about 7-8 acres per man, and that would jump to 10 acres per man if the department was not increased.

The council agreed to review the similar problem in the parks department at the next budget session June 22 and try to determine the best solution for both departments.

At the next budget session the council will also review proposed changes in the police department.

Requests for funds by local organizations will be reviewed in July, after the state budget has been adopted and the city knows more specifically what will be the financial picture.

Budget of $12.9 million OK'd for Upland schools

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

The Upland School District board of trustees approved a tentative budget of $12.9 million Tuesday for the 1981-82 school year.

The figure, showing only a 3 percent increase over last year's budget, was developed in the shadow of the uncertain state budget, which is not yet completed.

Superintendent George Renworth said the relatively small increase was made possible in part by declining enrollment in the district.

Attendance figures now at 5,906 are expected to drop by about 140 students next year, as the incoming kindergarten class is substantially smaller than the graduating eighth grade class.

State funds are apportioned according to the district's average daily attendance (ADA). The decrease in funding, as a result of smaller classes, will be partially balanced by the state's declining enrollment program, which will channel another $165,000 to the district in the coming year.

The teaching staff will be reduced by about six members in response to the declining enrollment. Renworth said the change would probably be made through attrition and transfers within the district, and that he did not anticipate any workers losing their jobs because of the cuts.

Funding for several federal programs, such as Project SELF and Project Future Print, was not included in the budget, due to anticipated cutbacks. Renworth said this did not necessarily mean the programs would be dropped, as money may still be appropriated. In addition, many materials for the programs have been purchased for past years, and may be reused.

In all, officials anticipate a loss of roughly $55,000 in federal funds, and another $10,000 in scattered accounts. Expenditures should decrease by about $45,000, they say, largely because of declining enrollment.

Upland resident David Harwich stands in front of one of three houses on 17th Street he featured in his 32-minute Super 8 film. Harwich, a budding producer-director, has been making movies since he was 12.

Hollywood comes to Upland with film's premiere

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

It had all the trappings of a Hollywood opening.

A flashy press release, heralding the film "Upland residents have been waiting more than than a year to see," and warning that officers from the city police department would be on hand to "control the huge crowd" expected.

Handbills scattered throughout town. A couple of well-placed signs.

A chosen few even received formal invitations written in script on formal white cards.

Never mind that the "world premier" took place in the multipurpose room of the Upland Public Library, or that the "huge crowd" consisted of about 40 friends and relatives of the filmmaker and the construction crew that starred in the epic.

It was David Harwich's way of introducing the project he spent more than three years working on.

"I figured I deserved it," said the 25-year-old director-producer-editor. "If I had known at the beginning the film would take that long, I would have never gotten into it."

Harwich, now a student at Chaffey College, received his first movie camera at age 12. His first films were of his family and neighborhood on Vallejo Way in Upland. He'd show them on his garage walls to anyone who would watch.

"I put a lot of those early movies together and called it 'The Vallejo Film Festival,'" he said with a smile. "The neighbors really got a kick out of it."

He's made other films as well — "The Evils of Gambling," which featured a fight scene choreographed by Harwich and acted by sixth graders from a local school; "The Hippie and the Girls," starring his grandmother and three other 80-year-old women and Harwich in the role of the hippie.

"I even had to make a jump out of a plane for that one," he recalled. "It cost $40 to rent the plane and make the dive down at Elsinore.

"My dad stood on the ground and did the filming."

His most recent production — and most extensive — chronicles the building of three homes on 17th Street near his house. It is entitled "The Making of 17th."

He started filming in January of 1978. At first, there were no plans to make it into a major project, but Harwich liked the way it was going. He decided to film the houses to their completion.

The movie opens with the buzz of an alarm clock and a worker — whose face we never see (played by Harwich's father, Matt) — strapping on a tool belt.

The camera carefully documents the laying of a cement slab, framing and all the steps taken in building a house. Harwich has scored it to music using gladiatorial marches for scenes with heavy equipment, snatches of musicals, hard rock and the William Tell Overture to introduce the last section, where workers bustle about frantically in the magic of time-lapse photography.

Harwich's audience at the opening night was enthusiastically supportive. He said he received "nothing but cooperation" from the workers throughout the filming, and they appeared to enjoy watching themselves in the finished product.

As with most movies, "The Making of 17th" ran both overbudget and overtime. Harwich estimates it cost him about $1,000 to produce (much of which came in the form of camera repairs when his tripod fell over one day) and more than three years.

"They said the last house, that I filmed in fast motion, would take about three months to complete," he said shaking his head. "It actually took more than a year."

Harwich budgeted his shots carefully, filming a total of about 40 minutes for the 32-minute movie.

"I didn't even know those characters (the construction workers) when I started. I sure do now.

"They really caught me one time — they all turned around and pulled their pants down," he said. "I had to edit that part out."

There were times he filmed with the camera under an umbrella in the pouring rain, and late into the evening when the light was barely adequate. But in January of this year, the building, landscaping and final touches were finally completed, and so was the filming.

He got some of the sound effects he needed by traveling to other construction sites throughout the West End, and by making his own and doing the final mixing.

Now Harwich is going to try to get as many people to see the film as possible, in the hopes "the right person" might see it — and be impressed.

Meanwhile, he's doing some free-lance photography work and taking juvenile law, first aid and body building at Chaffey.

"I'm not interested in going into any of those fields, but I've already taken all their film and photo courses," he said.

Harwich is already planning his next project, a film that takes an amusing — but informative — look at crime prevention. He said he is interested in all types of subject matter, but vehemently refuses to do anything that includes violence.

His ultimate goal is to make feature films.

"But I refuse to work for anybody," Harwich said, shaking his head firmly. "I think the way they run things in movie studios is ridiculous — a different person for every little job. No wonder it costs so much.

"Personally, I want my film to really be mine. I'll do the directing, producing, sound — and I certainly wouldn't want anyone to touch the editing.

"I want to always be in complete control."

A wine and cheese reception for the artists will be held from 2 to 5 p.m., and the public is invited to attend. The paintings will remain on exhibit through July 19.

The 23 women whose works will be shown are artists of note residing in the San Antonio communities, Edith Horsburg, exhibit chairman, said.

They are Jean Goodwin Ames, Miriam Aston, Carolyn Prince Batchelor, Thelma Borgert, Rose Canter, Diane Divelbess, Dorothy Sweet Downing, Marilyn Florenzi, Betty Davenport Ford, Elizabeth Fuller, Susan Lautmann Hertel, Elizabeth Hopkins, Edith Horsburg, Andree Mahoney, Joella Mahoney, Jane Marquis, Joanna Mersereau, Ingrid Petersen, Dorothy Palmer, Connie Newton,Norma Tanega, Loli Vann, and Joyce Corbett Winkle.

During the weeks the exhibit is hanging in the gallery, the artists will give gallery talks. The first will be June 20 with Elizabeth Fuller, Diane Divelbess and Norma Tanega sharing the limelight at 2 p.m. Carolyn Prince Batchelor will talk at 2 p.m. June 21. All interested people are invited to attend. There will be no charge.

Capsule backgrounds of the artists follows —

Loli Van (Mrs. Oscar Van Young) is internationally known with her work represented in the Archives of Venice, Italy Biennale, Museum of Modern Art, Sao Paolo, Brazil, and the Archives of California Art, Oakland Museum. A watercolorist, she has exhibited nationally and locally since 1934.

The inspiration to become an artist, Joyce Corbett Winkle says, came in high school where she studied with Robert George, current Chaffey Community Art Association president. She has exhibited in New York, Seattle and San Francisco as well as Southern California. Her collages represent the artist's many years of interest in collecting old papers and antique patterns.

Norma Tanega's oils present a non-traditional approach to her art in a series of portrait masks. She has lived, painted and composed music for guitar or autoharp in London and co-owner of a Redondo Beach art gallery. She now teaches at Cal Poly Pomona. She has exhibited widely in California.

Joella Mahoney is a professor of art at the University of La Verne. She has become known for her large oils of desert landscapes, placid lakes and mountains. She has exhibited widely in California and received numerous awards desert scenes.

Jane Marquis has taught at Pitzer College and in summer sessions at Idylwild with stained glass as her medium. Her commissioned work has included 12 windows for Temple Rodef-Sholom and glass sculpture and panels for private collections in Tacoma, New York, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, La. Jolla, Eugene, Ore., and other cities. In this exhibit, Marquis will show a "weaving" group with blue tones, rose tones and cognac hues in three pieces of art.

The recipient of two prizes, the 1980 Watercolor West XIII in Riverside and the 1980 Orange Show in San Bernardino, Joanna Mersereau is staff artist for the Riverside County schools.

Dorothy Palmer's work could be called ethereal airbrush art. Her "color rhythms," as she calls them, are geometric, hard-edged paintings which show a rhythmic placement reminding one of a melody once stated then repeated over and over with variations.

Born and educated in Copenhagen, Ingrid Petersen has studied and taught in Europe, England and California. She describes herself as "mainly a textile person, though sculpture has found a place in my life..." She will display wall hangings, ceramic sculpture and soft sculpture in this show.

Connie Newton has won many awards at art shows in the Southland, including two special judge's awards, for her watercolors. Her studies of California and the West reflect originality and freshness. She will show watercolors along with other works in acrylic and mixed media.

A painter and printmaker, Diane Divelbess is a professor of art at Cal Poly Pomona. Her numerous solo and group exhibitions have earned praise for her work with space relationships.

Dorothy Sweet Downing, a colorist, uses a wide variety of media to reflect a positive, joyous quality in her art. She is known for her "bright" landscapes and "people" paintings. She also is a sculptor. She will exhibit oil paintings.

Marilyn Florenzi will show oils on canvas, fabric and gold leaf. A former instructor of art at the college level, she now devotes herself to painting.

Betty Davenport Ford, acclaimed sculptor, has received numerous awards for her work in clay, Fiberglass, bronze, wood, cast concrete, aluminum, welded brass and steel. She has filled many commissions for architectural settings as well as sculptures for private collections and residences. She is a graduate of Chaffey High School, Scripps College and Cranbrook Academy of Art. She will exhibit clay and aluminum sculptures ... she specializes in animals.

Elizabeth Fuller teaches and works with fabric art in her studio. She has exhibited in this country and abroad. In this exhibit she will feature fabric structures and wall hangings with emphasis on delicate hues and changing spacial relationships.

Large oil paintings will be shown by Susan Lautmann Hertel. She also is known for her mosaics, stained glass windows, murals and tapestries. She has illustrated a number of books and has done custom decorating of residential furniture. She is a Scripps College graduate.

A graduate of both USC and the State School for Marble, Carrara, Italy, Elizabeth Hopkins is a watercolorist and sculptor. She has exhibited in California and Italy. She will show watercolors, an oil painting and a sculptured head.

A former teacher of art who utilizes mixed media painting, Edith Horsburgh is presently a consultant in art for the Hacienda-La Puente Unified School District. She also is exhibit chairman for the "Women's Work" show.

Andree Mahoney teaches ceramics and painting at Chaffey College. She has exhibited ceramics extensively in Southern California and her work is displayed in studios of interior design. She will exhibit a closed tripod ceramic vessel. Much of her ceramic work feels like velvet to the touch.

Rose Canter is an ikebana artist and sculptor. She has earned the prestigious rank of Jonin Somu in the Sogetsu-ryu of Japan. She also is accredited by Ohara-ryu and the 15th century Soami-Ryu. Following AHA inspection of facility

Local humane society ends ties with group

By RICHARD PERAZA
Staff Writer

The Humane Society of the Chaffey Community is no longer a member of the American Humane Association.

Humane society Manager Betty Fryman said she "withdrew" from the organization — considered one of the most prestigious by many area veterinarians — Wednesday following an AHA inspection of local facilities.

She said she and inspector Capt. Bill Verdon, chief of the humane society in San Diego, had "a slight basic disagreement" over how many dogs should be kept in the kennels.

Verdon felt the local kennels exceeded AHA standards and were overcrowded, she said. "When you have a difference of opinion on your standards and their standards, then you terminate your membership."

Verdon, reached in San Diego, said he has not yet filed his formal report and declined to comment. "I'm really not in a position to even acknowledge I did an inspection," he said. "It would be pretty well priviledged information."

Fryman said the local humane society will not close its doors; AHA membership is not a requirement. She said the association was one of about six professional organizations the local humane society is affiliated with.

"You don't need membership in any of these organizations," she said. She said kennel conditions are well within state standards, which require dogs have room "to stand up, lie down and sit down."

Fryman denied the humane society's membership plaque was pulled for lack of sanitation. "There was no comment from them on sanitation that we know of. I don't think, in all fairness, he could file anything saying it wasn't sanitary. If it was, half the dogs would be dead."

"He didn't find any unhealthy dogs whatever," Fryman said. "He thought we should be carrying less but then we'd have to put more dogs to sleep."

The local kennels were designed to hold up to 10 dogs, according to Fryman. "We've never, ever put 10 dogs in one of those kennels."

She said a common practice locally is to keep two large dogs, three medium sized dogs or six small dogs in one kennel. The exceptions are quarantined dogs and dogs privately boarded, which receive single kennels, she added.

"It's our thought as long as the dogs are healthy and you don't have disease in your kennel, why should you take somebody else's word for the kennel," Fryman said.

She said to comply with AHA standards, she would have to decrease the number of dogs kept for adoptions by putting some to sleep. She said her policy is to keep the dogs alive and eligible for adoption as long as possible.

"I know they can't compel us to conform to what their standards are. Our standards are what work for us," she said. "When you say these are too many or these are too few, that's a personal opinion."

"It was not an inspection that we didn't invite; we contacted American Humane," she said.

"Chaffey has been the target, for a number of years, of a number of people in the community who disagree with the board's procedures," she said.

She said complaints kept piling up until "we asked for American Humane intervention here."

2-day rodeo planned at Glen Avon arena

The fifth annual Jurupa Community Rodeo will be held June 13 and 14 in Glen Avon in West Riverside County.

Grand marshal for the two-day event will be Casey Tibbs, rodeo sport's all-around champion in 1955 and 1959 and nine-time saddle bronc world champion. Tibbs, 52, has also served as a stunt man and adviser for more than 25 films.

Tom Mitchell and his Triangle T Rodeo Producers company from Bloomington will produce the rodeo events. Included in his stock is the Schlitz Malt Liquor bull and the Merrill Lynch bull.

The Schlitz bull is a rodeo competitor and has given eight rides at the Jurupa rodeo, winning all eight against the cowboys, who must remain seated for eight seconds. None have. The bull was ridden once in Fontana about four years ago, the first time in 94 attempts. Tickets can be purchased at the gate of the Jurupa Rodeo Arena, located at the intersection of Pedley and Jurupa roads in Glen Avon.

2 students honored at Chaffey College

A second year journalism student at Chaffey College was named the second place winner in critical review writing at a statewide conference held in Fresno recently.

Joe Pasley won an award from the Journalism Association of Community Colleges for his review of the Bette Midler movie, "Divine Madness." The story was published in a fall 1980 edition of "The Paper," Chaffey's student newspaper.

Another award was won by Paul Weilacker in on-the-spot editorial writing.

Weilacker was given a sixth place award for his editorial written in response to a speech given during a news conference by Robert Delano of the United Farm Workers. The contest was conducted in a newsroom setting and contestants had a one-hour time period to write their editorials.

"It was quite an accomplishment for our students to place so high in the writing events with the stiff competition present at the conference," said Pauline Aroian, Chaffey Journali professor.

TWA's station chief at OIA will retire

By BRUCE THORNTON
Staff Writer

Howard Anderson, whose roots with Trans World Airlines go back a long way, has announced he will retire from his job as TWA's station manager at Ontario International Airport, a job he has held for 20 years. His retirement will become effective June 1.

In all, Anderson has been employed by TWA for 36 years, 28 of which he has worked in San Bernardino County. He managed a ticket office in San Bernardino from 1953 to 1961 when he was transferred to Ontario.

He said he was employed by the airline in 1945 at Burbank before Los Angeles International Airport opened.

"In December 1946 we moved to new headquarters at LAX when it opened," Anderson recalled. "TWA had the first plane land at LAX after midnight the morning after we moved in."

With the fuel crunch causing economic problems for airlines, what does he think of the future of the Ontario airport?

"I've watched this airport grow and I expect it to have a great future," Anderson said. "I believe it will become a major airport by 1985."

Howard Anderson

He said he expects having the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles will be of considerable benefit to this airport.

Three years ago, Anderson moved to Hesperia, where he now lives and plans to spend his retirement years.

He plans to do some traveling with his wife, Ila, and daughter, Shauna, after retirement. Their first trip, he said, will be to Portland and Anchorage in June and later they plan to visit the South Pacific, New Zealand and the Holy Land.

Meanwhile, he said, the half acre he owns in Hesperia will keep him busy.

"I'm growing fruit trees, berries, grapes and vegetables — everything I can," he said.

In addition to his daughter, Shauna, he has two married children and nine grandchildren who live in the West End area.

Miner ordered not to use road

By SCOTT RECKARD
Staff Writer

The U.S. Forest Service won the first round of its court battle against tungsten miner Ron Curtis Thursday when a judge granted a temporary restraining order barring Curtis from using an access road to his mine.

The miner was ruled to have violated the terms of his special-use permit for the road, which runs from Cow Canyon Saddle above Mt. Baldy Village to Cattle Canyon west of the village.

Arguments for a preliminary restraining order will be heard June 15, Curtis said. The miner said he will contest the reasonableness of restrictions in his permit, which allows him no use of the road during April, May or June.

Curtis won the right to use the road the other nine months last year in what was seen as a compromise with environmentalists. The three months were put off-limits because bighorn sheep use areas near the road to give birth to lambs in the spring.

Curtis was supposed to have had mine access during those months over another road that winds up canyon bottoms to his claim beneath Mt. Baldy. But the lower road, Curtis' only mine access for many years, crosses private property. Curtis is being sued by the landowner for trespassing.

The miner forced the issue into court Monday when he cut open the gates to the upper road and drove a mine truck onto Forest Service land. He was cited at that time by a ranger.

Don Stikkers, the district ranger, has produced a recent U.S. Court of Appeals decision permitting the Forest Service to "adopt reasonable rules and regulations which do not impermissably encroach upon the right to the use and enjoyment of placer claims for mining purposes."

Stikkers also said that the bighorn sheep are a national resource that must be protected. Study of them must take priority over use of the mining road until the effect of contact with mine vehicles in the spring is determined, he said.

But Curtis said he will argue that the restriction is not reasonable, since he cannot use the lower access route.

"I'd rather talk to the sheep than the Forest Service anymore," he commented Thursday. "This is just the beginning.

"When you clean house, you get out your vacuum cleaner first and plug it in. We plugged it in today. Now we're going to see where it will go."

Stikkers said this morning that it was not the duty of the Forest Service to provide Curtis an easement across private land. He added that at present Curtis would be allowed to again use the upper road beginning July 1. But he said that an evaluation of the data on interactions between the sheep and the mining vehicles was not yet complete and that changes might be made.

"It's a friendly fight," Stikkers said, "and we hope to keep it that way. Ron's got a point to make and so do we. We'll just have to see what happens."

Custard soup is quick

Sophisticated, but simple, this asparagus-spiked lemony custard soup tastes like it takes all day to prepare. Thanks to The incredible edible egg, it's nutritious, too.

1 pound fresh asparagus spears, cut into 1-inch pieces OR 1 package (10 oz.) frozen cut asparagus
8 eggs
¼ cup lemon juice
Watercress, optional

In large saucepan bring chicken broth and asparagus to boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until asparagus is crisp-tender, about 8 minutes. Beat together eggs and lemon juice. Blend small amount of hot brother into egg - lemon mixture. Stir egg - lemon mixture into remaining hot brother. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and just coats a metal spoon. Serve immediately, if desired, or cool quickly by setting pan in bowl of ice or cold water and stirring for a few minutes. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. Serve thoroughly chilled. Garnish with watercress, if desired.

Nutritional bonus found in brown rice

The nutritional bonus derived from the bran layers of brown rice, including food fiber, protein, vitamins and minerals, and the whole - grain texture and nutty flavor, make this rice a treat when served all by itself.

Combine with vegetables and seasonings, it becomes a gourmet taste sensation.

Whether vegetables are picked from the garden or from the supermarket, their colors and flavors will take on new excitement in brown rice accompaniment dishes. Be choosy about the brown rice selected, however, as brown rice is an agricultural product, harvested just once a year. Oils present in the bran layer of ordinary brown rice may begin to turn rancid just six months after harvesting. Select brown rice is the exception. Because it has undergone a special "par-boiling" process, this special brown rice has a greatly increased shelf life. In addition, the process assures that the rice will not be sticky or mushy, even when stirred together with other ingredients.

When simply prepared "best buy" meats or poultry are on the menu, bring special flavor and elegance to the table with Mushroom - Asparagus Brown Rice. Select brown rice extends a half pound of each of these "luxury" vegetables to make six generous servings, and the single skillet preparation saves on energy and clean-up chores.

In the European fashion, Thyme-ly Primavera Brown Rice has a small amount of cream stirred in at the end of the cooking time. Colorful and richly flavored, this easy -to - fix dish elevates everyday vegetables to "gourmet" status. Adding vegetables near the end of cooking assures perfect crisp-tender texture and bright colors.

Mushroom-Asparagus Brown Rice

½ pound fresh mushrooms, quartered
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
3 chicken bouillon cubes
2½ cups water
1 cup select brown rice
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
½ pound fresh asparagus, cut diagonally into 1-inch pieces

Cook mushrooms in butter in 10-inch skillet just until tender, about 3 to 4 minutes. Remove mushrooms from skillet. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender but not brown. Add water, bouillon cubes and nutmeg to skillet; bring to a boil. Stir in rice. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 35 minutes. Stir in asparagus. Cover and continue cooking over low heat until all liquid is absorbed, about 15 minutes. Stir in mushrooms. Makes 6 servings.

Thyme-ly Primavera Brown Rice

½ cup chopped onion or thinly sliced leeks
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2½ cups beef broth or bouillon
1 cup select brown rice
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon thyme leaves
2 small zucchini, cut in ¼-inch slices
½ cup coarsely chopped red or green pepper
1 tomato, coarsely chopped
¼ cup heavy cream or half and half

Cook onion in butter in large saucepan until tender but not brown. Add broth; bring to a boil. Stir in rice, salt and thyme. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 40 minutes. Stir in zucchini and pepper. Cover tightly and continue cooking until all liquid is absorbed, about 10 minutes. Stir in tomato and cream. Makes 6 servings.

Fresh corn stars at cookout time

When the weather gets to that certain warmth and dependability of early summer that makes cooking inside seem dull, it is time to think of special festive menus to prepare on the barbecue. One way to insure pleased response from everyone is to feature the first fresh sweet corn of the season. Westerners will receive this from early May on all through June, rushed from the Coachella Valley, in some cases within 24 hours of picking.

Growers in this desert area, where world famed Palm Springs is located, claim that sparkling, extra hours of warm sunshine help produce the fine quality corn that they chill and ship to Western retail markets immediately to insure best flavor. Another factor that contributes to corn quality is the Coachella Valley's fertile soil, which is extra rich in minerals.

Select corn for barbecuing that has well developed milky kernels in even rows, and green, fresh husks. For a change of pace serve corn wrapped in bacon. This can be set up and partially prepared ahead of serving time, then finished on the grill toward the end of the meat cooking time.

One interesting meat choice is pork blade steaks. Purchase pork blade steaks that are thicker than usual, about ½ to ¾ inch thickness works well for barbecuing; many butchers will cut them to order.

Barbecued Corn

Select Coachella Valley sweet corn in the husks. Strip husks down to end of cub, but do not tear off. Remove silk. Let stand in cold, salted water 10 minutes or until ready to cook. Brush corn with softened butter or margarine and season with salt and pepper. Then bring husks back up around corn, making sure the entire ear is covered. Secure husks with thin florist's wire, picture hanging wire or strip of corn husk tied around tightly.

Turn a quarter-turn 4 times during barbecuing. When corn is done, remove wire and husks. Serve immediately. Corn prepared for barbecuing in the foregoing manner may also be barbecued in a spit hasket on a rotisserie spit with motor for about 20 minutes. Another method for barbecuing is to wrap the ears, prepared in husks as above, in a double thickness of heavy duty aluminum foil, twisting ends of foil thoroughly. Place corn on briquets and barbecue about 10 minutes, turning once. For gas barbecues, preheat barbecue rocks on high for about 3 minutes, place prepared - for - barbecuing ears on position grill and barbecue 10 to 12 minutes, quarter-turning 4 times.

Cookout Pork Blade Steaks

4 to 6 pork blade steaks, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick

Barbecue sauce, if desired

Allow charcoal to burn until covered with gray ash. Place steaks on grill as far as possible from heat. Broil at low to moderate temperature, turning occasionally until done. Brush frequently with barbecue sauce, if desired. Steaks cut ½ inch thick require approximately 45 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bacon-Wrapped Corn-on-the-cob

4 to 6 bacon slices
4 to 6 ears sweet corn
Salt and pepper

Remove husk and silk from corn and cook in unsalted boiling water 2 to 4 minutes. Partially cook bacon in frying -pan until transparent yet pliable. Remove to absorbent paper. Wrap each eat with a strip of partially cooked bacon. Place bacon-wrapped corn on double thickness of foil. Finish cooking on grill until bacon lightly browns and corn is tender. Season with salt and pepper. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Nutty Swiss cheese provides the flavor for Saucy Chicken and Vegetable Bake. This is a tasty trio of cheese, cauliflower and chicken to harmonize into a simple, yet special, casserole idea for summertime menus. Easy to put together, easier to eat!

Chicken, cauliflower harmonize on menu

A tasty trio — chicken, cauliflower and cheese — harmonize to create a simple, yet special, casserole idea for summertime menus.

The test kitchens have combined this delicious combo with colorful cherry tomatoes, herbs and spices in Saucy Chicken and Vegetable Bake. A mild, nutty-sweet natural Swiss cheese sauce is the ideal choice for blending the flavors of poultry and garden-fresh vegetables.

Making the most of plentiful summer foods, the dish combines fresh vegetables and poultry to create a wholesome entree. Served with green salad and bread or rolls, it's an easy, economical supper.

When you think of a cheese dressing, blue cheese probably comes to mind. But here's a novel dressing idea that pairs mild Monterey Jack cheese with dill weed.

The subtle, creamy flavor of Monterey Jack in Savory Cheese Dressing is the perfect complement for crisp summer greens, sliced tomatoes or cooked and chilled green beans.

Saucy Chicken and Vegetable Bake

2½ lbs. (2) whole chicken breasts, split
¼ cup oil
3 tabledspoons flour
2½ cups milk
1 tablespoon freeze-dried chopped chives
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Dash of pepper
Dash of poultry seasoning
1½ cups (6 ozs.) shredded natural Swiss cheese
4 cups (1 large head) cauliflowerets, cooked, drained
1 cup cherry tomato halves

Brown chicken on all sides in oil; remove from skillet. Drain fat, reserving two tablespoons Blend flour into reserved fat, mixing until well blended. Gradually add milk; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in seasonings and ½ cup cheese, stirring until cheese is melted. Place chicken in 11¾ x 7½-inch baking dish, surround with combined vegetables. Top with sauce and remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees, 30 minutes. Four servings.

Variation: 2 10-oz. pkgs. frozen cauliflower, cooked, drained may be substituted for fresh cauliflower.

Cheese Dressing

1 cup (4 ozs.) shredded natural Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup oil
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dill weed

Combine ingredients; mix well. Chill; stir well before serving. 2 cups.

Spices add zip

Although many prepared foods can be quite acceptable eating, a sprinkle of spice will often improve or at least give them refreshing variety. Frozen pizza, for example, gets a more authentic Italian accent when you add some garlic powder, basil and oregano or Italian seasoning. Canned or jarred spaghetti sauces also benefit greatly from these same additions. Instant mashed potatoes rise out of blandland when dashed with celery salt or instant minced onion. So-so frozen fried chicken perks right up when sprinkled with a small amount of curry powder before heating in the oven. Canned tomato soup, the tried-and-true, is a fresh surprise when you season it with a little garlic powder and a pinch of ginger; or, for zip, a quick dash of chili powder.

Creamed vegetable soups get south-of-the-border flavor when ground cumin is added. Or, if you use mincing of dill weed it will take the flavor to Scandinavia. Or invent your own new tastes. They're all within easy reach of your spice shelf. The American Spice Trade Association recommends starting with about a quarter teaspoon of herb or spice and then tasting. You can increase or not as needed until you are pleased with the difference.

Chaffey trustees OK agreement with Lockheed for new program

Chaffey College trustees finally approved an agreement last week with Lockheed Aircraft Service Co. of Ontario that would provide aeronautics training for Royal Malaysian Air Force technicians.

The agreement was approved on a 3-1 vote with Sandra Garner casting the dissenting vote. Sharon King-Jeffers was absent.

The board had postponed action on the matter to allow county counsel to review the agreement between Chaffey and Lockheed.

With the approval, Lockheed officials are now looking at Sept. 1 instead of July 1 for the start of the multi-year program.

Earle Hamley, director of the program for Lockheed, said "we are still pursuing the final contract with the government of Malaysia."

Hamley wouldn't speculate on when the Malaysians could approve the contract. But interim SuperintendentPresident Glenn Gooder said today that the college will have to be notified by June 30 if the contract with the Malaysians has been approved or not.

Both Gooder and Hamley said the September date will give all those involved more time to work out final details.

The students would be trained in Chaffey's aeronautics program and would reside on campus in dormitories to, be constructed by Lockheed.

In voting against the proposal, Garner cited a number of reasons for opposing it. She expressed concern over the location of more services on the main Rancho Cucamonga campus instead of satellite campuses throughout the district.

Garner also was concerned over the cost of converting the dormitories to classrooms once the program is completed.

Nearly $17 million budget OK'd by Omnitrans board

By BRUCE THORNTON
Staff Writer

The Omnitrans board of directors approved a budget for fiscal 1981-82 of almost $17 million at a regular meeting last week in San Bernardino.

The budget, as submitted by Director of Accounting Vincent P. Murone, amounted to $16,944,008. But directors decided to hire an equipment mechanic they said was needed to keep automatic lifts on buses working, adding slightly more than $16,000 to the budget.

The new budget totals $15,402 less than the 1980-81 budget of $16,959,410.

Murone said three changes were made in the budget at the recommendation of Omnitrans' Technical Advisory Committee.

One of these changes should mean savings in fixed route operations totalling $199,607. The economies include cutting back more than 150,000 operating miles, eliminating of four coach operators and reducing expenditures for tires and tubes, diesel fuel, oil, mainttenance and repair of rolling stock and liability insurance, as well as a reduction in the appropriated reserve of $33,000.

The budget calls for increasing expenditures by $59,169 for Dial-a-Ride service in the county and in the city of San Bernardino. The additional money would cover an increase from the current seven vehicles operating 12 hours a day Monday through Friday to 10 vehicles operating 10 hours a day.

The third revision became feasible, Murone said, because the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration has allowed a three-year installment plan for the funding of the West End Maintenance Facility in the Montclair Trans Center.

This means that instead of earmarking the the total $944,679 cost of the facility in the 1981-82 budget, only $315,550 will be reserved for the maintenance center. The remaining $629,099 for the facility would be allocated in the next two fiscal years.

Sycamore Elementary School's PTA recently gave its Honorary Service Award to Frank Guzowski. Guzowski has served as a soccer coach, as treasurer of the Executive Soccer Board and as vice regional commissioner of Upland, as legislation chairman of the Sycamore PTA and on the Upland School Boundary Committee, and as treasurer of a local Boy Scout troop.

Montclair's Mayor gets recognition

Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes has been given the first "Most Valuable Elected Public Official Award" from the Southern California chapter of the American Public Works Association.

The presentation to the mayor was made during a recent quarterly meeting of the Southern California chapter. It is the first time the award has been given.

Jim Martin, public works director for the city of Fresno and Region 8 director, recalled how Hayes over the years has been instrumental in championing the cause to have strong public works programs, according to reports.

"It is certainly quite an honor for Harold to be recognized by city engineers and public works directors of Southern California," said City Administrator G. Michael Milhiser.

Mrs. Larry Vandersall of Upland recently was installed as president of the Fifth District PTA for the 1981-83 term. She will direct PTA activities throughout San Bernardino County, which has 50,000 members from 175 schools. Also installed at the May workshops in Crestline were Mrs. Joe Silva of Chino, first vice president; Mrs. Ethel Ward of Ontario, director of education

Landscape design exhibit

An idea for an exhibit of a collection of Cal Poly Pomona students' design projecsts in the University Union Gallery led to sponsorship of a landscape design project on campus.

Former gallery manager John Maynard's plans for the exhibit of the work of students in the landscape architecture department, in 1979, was followed by a proposal to the department to offer the Union and its environs as a design problem for one of its classes. The design request was to develop landscape layouts that would suggest spaces or areas for sculpture in various settings around the Union.

Cash awards were offered as an incentive to students presenting the most successful solutions to the problem statement. Of the 45 designs submitted, five were selected for the awards. Changes proposed in the Gallery area included installation of bench seating, planting boxes, and location of scuptural displays. Other features included the addition of a retaining wall with a relief design at the Union entrance, redesign of some pathways, and free standing curvilinear seating units with areas for sculptural display.

The project was continued during the following academic quarter, with the winning designers agreeing to develop one comprehensive design using the best elements from each plan. The Union professional staff and the university planning officer worked with the students on developing a unified plan which, in addition to creativity, met the Union's needs of feasibility, modest cost, and the ability to be completed in stages.

During completion of the second stage in the project, Nanci Howe, University Union assistant director, applied for a Cal Poly Kellogg Unit Foundation Grant that would provide construction costs for a small portion of the total design. The grant, in the amount $2,750, was awarded in May 1980, and is financing the material costs for the construction of one of the seating units in the patio area. Construction of the unit has become another class project through the Environmental Design program. A landscape design construction class will prepare the design's workin g drawings and will build the seating unit, under the direction of Chester Volski, professor of landscape architecture.

Contributions sought

The Montclair Branch Library is seeking contributions of books and paperbacks to be used at a book sale on Saturday, June 20 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The book sale will be held in front of the Mayfair Market located on the corner of Benito and Central in Montclair.

The proceeds of the sale will be used to benefit the library through the purchase of new books, paperbacks, magazines and newspapers. Persons wishing to donate books for the sale may call the library at 624-4671 prior to the sale.

Montclair reading program

There will be two summer reading game programs at the Montclair Branch Library for pre-schoolers to sixth graders. The first program will be the Curious George Read-to-me Club. This game is designed for pre-schoolers and non-reading kindergarteners. The game requires participation of the young and old. Children will be given a Curious George Stamp chart that will be kept on file in the library until the end of the game. Every book read to the child allows the child to stamp monkeys on his chart. After hearing ten or more books this summer, children will receive a certificate.

"Magical Mystery Tour" will be the theme for the summer reading game program for the first through sixth graders. Children are welcome to register in the Magical Mystery Tour Book in order to join the game.

A recordkeeping booklet will be kept at the library and given to the readers at the end of the game. Children are welcome to read books on any subject as long as it is on their grade level.

The library wishes parents to encourage their children in improving their reading skills throughout the summer months.

The readers will keep a record of the author and title of every book read this summer. For each book read, a magic trick, riddle, puzzle or secret message will be given away. After reading ten books or more, a certificate will be given.

Both games will begin on Tuesday, June 23 and will end on Tuesday, Aug. 25. Summer reading game club members may participate in activities each Tuesday afternoon at 2.

Revisions to 1902 law to be considered

Ayala to take water council post

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Sen. Ruben Ayala has been appointed to a subcommittee of the Western States Water Council, which will consider revisions in a controversial 1902 law placing a limit on farms receiving federal water.

Ayala, D-32nd District, is chairman of the state Senate Agriculture and Water Resources Committee and California's representative on the water council.

The Reclamation Act of 1902 limited farm ownership on federally irrigated land to no more than 160 acres for each member of a farm family and required that the family live on the property.

"This was to encourage small farmers and discourage big conglomerates," Ayala said.

Enforcement of the law was ignored until a federal court decision in 1977. Along with the changing conhis Peripheral Canal legislation is involved in the politics of revising the act.

Ayala said, "We have new conditions that didn't exist in 1902," describing the limits as "horse and buggy" regulations.

While seeing the need for revisions, Ayala said rates for the federal water are subsidies amounting to a "form of welfare to the rich."

He said farmers in the Central Valley receiving federal water are charged $3.50 to $7 an acre-foot (326,000 gallons). Farmers in the same region receiving State Water Project water pay $30 an acre-foot. State and federal water going to the Central Valley is comingled near Los Banos in Northern California and pumped the same distance, Ayala noted.

Farmers in the Imperial Valley getting federal water by the American Canal pay $17 an acre-foot, a figure also well below costs, Ayala said.

Ayala authored a joint resolution of the state Legislature three years ago calling for changes in the federal statute, but he noted farmers were displeased that same year when he criticized the subsidies during a hearing in El Centro.

Low rates come at the "expense of somebody — that somebody is you and I, the taxpayer," he commented.

Ayala's legislation to build the Peripheral Canal, the so-called "missing link" of the State Water Project — faces a referendum on the next statewide ballot, possibly this November.

The two largest owners of agricultural land in California — J.G. Boswell Co. and Salyer Land Co., which farm a total of some 220,000 acres in the state — oppose the Peripheral Canal legislation.

During debate on the Peripheral Canal in Sacramento, Ayala said a rumor circulated that the two conglomerates made a deal with congressmen from the area of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, which the 43-mile canal would skirt to bring water south.

In exchange for congressional help in erasing the limit on acreage, the big firms would oppose the Peripheral Canal, Ayala said of the alleged agreement.

"That's just one of those rumors that float around," he said, adding, "I wouldn't put it past them, frankly."

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling in 1980 and congressional action the same year exempted the Imperial Valley from the 160-acre limit. That exemption stems from a letter in 1933 by the secretary of the interior.

The Western States Water Council advises the Interior Department and Congress on water policy for the western states. Ayala's appointment is scheduled to be confirmed in late July during meetings in Idaho.

Firm is recipient of honor

General Dynamics — Pomona Division has been selected as recipient of the annual Community Service Award of the National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (NARF), it was announced by Dean B. Settle, president. General Dynamics was chosen from among several entries nationwide to receive the honor which will be presented at NARF's annual conference Tuesday in Milwaukee. Accepting the award for General Dynamies — Pomona Division will be Monty W. Dickinson, director of manufacturing and material control.

Settle expalined, "The award is presented to an organization which has objectives not directly related to the rehabilitation field, but which has in some way identified itself with a special project or services to promote the quality and quantity of services or the number of individuals served in facilities."

General Dynamics was nominated by Casa Colina Hospital for Rehabilitative Medicine, Pomona. The nomination cited the corporation for "active involvement with many diverse programs at Casa Colina and other organizations that serve the disabled in the Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys over the past decade."

Specific programs outlined were the assistance and management resources offered in the development of the Casa Colina Career Development Center (comprehensive vocational rehabilitation services), Casa Colina industries (transitional workshop) subcontract work to help train disabled persons and serving as a hiring source for graduates of Casa Colina's vocational programs.

Participation by key General Dynamics officials in the governing board of Casa Colina, the firm's continuing financial support and their contribution in 1980 of the production of a feature film outlining the many programs and people of Casa Colina were also recognized.

"If there is an organization in this country that is truly deserving of this honor, General Dynamics is that group," says Dale Eazell, Casa Colina president. "The cost savings they have helped Casa Colina and other area organizations generate over the past few years and continue to generate along with the results of helping disabled persons return to the mainstream of life to the greatest extent possible, help General Dynamics to stand out among the many friends of rehabilitation in the United States," Eazell concluded.

NARF is a professional association representing community rehabilitation facilities throughout the United States.

$1 million fund-raising drive launched for museum

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

A $1 million fund-raising drive was launched Thursday for the Museum of History and Art, Ontario, at a dinner in the Ontario Civic Center Community building with some 125 supporters attending.

A contribution of $70,000 was presented to J. Dewey Harnish, chairman of the fund-raising organization, the Development Council, by Dennis Green on behalf of Mervyn's and the Dayton-Hudson Foundation.

In making the gift presentation, Green, director of Mervyn's Ontario Distribution Center, read a letter from Richard F. Contee, president of the Dayton-Hudson Foundation.

"On behalf of Mervyn's, the Dayton-Hudson Foundation is pleased to pledge $70,000 in support of your capital campaign for conversion and renovation of the old city hall into a Museum of History and Art, Ontario," Green read.

"This pledge," he continued, "is made possible by a contribution from Mervyn's ... signed, J. F. Kilmartin, chairman and chief executive officer of Dayton - Hudson Corporation."

Green expressed his pleasure in being able to make the gift to the Development Council. "I am new in be giving my time to his museum and to working for a company that supports it," he said.
the community and am delighted to

In accepting the gift and expressing his appreciation on behalf of the council, Harnish said the $1 million drive is $300,000 or 30 percent near its goal due to the Dayton - Hudson gift and contributions of other supporters in the community.

Robert Sutton was master of ceremonies for the kick-off dinner. Many of the diners were "roasted" in good humor by Sutton.

He also introduced representatives of the community — Dr. Norman Steinaker, education; Robert Fleck, art; Harriett Covey, library; Arnold Anderson, business and banking; Ontario Mayor Robert Ellingwood, the city; James "Skip" Pahl, museum director; and Homer Briggs, Ontario councilman.

Faye Myers Dastrup, Ontario councilman and Ontario mayor pro tempore, spoke on the guiding principle of the museum.

"Although the museum is new, its guiding principle is not: it is an advantaged community that grows with a sense of its historical importance, with pride in its cultural past and present and with confidence in its ability to face future challenges.

"The story of the communities that have grown together in the shadow of Mt. San Antonio is truly unique. For us to fully understand our own special character and creative abilities, we must assemble our history and art tradition in a meaningful and accessible way. This then is a joint community effort. Its scope encompasses Ontario, Upland, Montclair, Claremont, Pomona, Chino and Rancho Cucamonga."

The Museum of History and Art, Ontario, formerly was the Ontario City Hall. The beautiful Spanish-Mediterranean, U-shaped building was erected in 1937 on land which originally held the Ontario Country Club, built in 1903. The Country Club ceased to thrive and the City of Ontario purchased the building and land for $17,000 in 1910.

The old Country Club served for city council and other city business until the new city hall was erected in 1937.

After the 1980 completion of the new Ontario City Hall between B and C Streets, Ordinance 2053 was passed by the Ontario City Council to turn the old building over to a board for the purpose of converting it into history and art galleries.

The museum board of trustees voted to have the Chaffey Community Art Association use the north wing for a gallery. The opening exhibit of watercolors by prominent artists connected with the community was held on March 15 of this year. Plans are now being made to open the third exhibit on June 14 featuring women artists. The second exhibit displayed works created by local students.

"Skip" Pahl was hired as museum director soon after the museum board took over plans for the building's future. Lou Ann Svenson is museum secretary.

Funds from the $1 million will be used to renovate the south wing as a museum and other areas of the building into a graphic arts shop, darkroom, woodworking shop, audio-visual lab and offices. The former city council auditorium, which seats 100, will be used for lectures, meetings, seminars, group tour orientations, film showings, educational slide/sound programs and other events.

As chairman of the Development Council, Harnish will be assisted by Dastrup and Briggs as co-chairmen of the development fund. Randy Bond will be advance gifts division chairman, and Jim Bookhout will be banking and finance section chairman. Bob Sutton will handle public relations.

Members of the board of trustees are Bert C. Francis, chairman; Dr. Patrick J. King, vice chairman; Elinore Carlson, secretary; and Bryce A. Denton and Dennis Green.

Minister says world contains 'good news' too

By REV. KENNETH R. T. GORDON
Montclair Ministerial Association

On a TV advertisement, the newsman says, "It's all bad news today George!" It appears he is about right. Everywhere we look, everything we hear seems to speak of bad news! Death, unhappy families, wars, economic problems, and on and on. The problems never seem to stop! Sin has filled our world with corruption and hatred, with suspicion and fear, with emptiness and sorrow, with uncertainty and often an uneasy sense of hopelessness or lack of purpose.

However, regardless of everything else you may have seen on TV lately, or read in the papers and magazines, have you heard the good news? There still is real hope for us, both for today and the future, because the good news is — "God loves you anyway!" In spite of all you may have understood, God really has promised something wonderful for us, plus He wants us to live with Him, forever! Scripture tells us that "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son (Jesus), that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

Many people do not know of God's love, and thus are not experiencing His "abundant life." But the good news is, that anyone can! God loves each of us, even though sin has separated us from Him. What does Scripture mean when it speaks of sin? "Everyone who practices sin also practices lawlessness; and sin is lawlessness (not keeping the Word/commandments of God)." Also, "... whatever is not from faith is sin." Scripture also warns us of sin's consequences: "For the wages of sin is death (spiritual separation from God)." And, "we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God, so then each one of us shall give account of himself to God."

Now, I grant you this is not the good news we so desperately want to hear! But, did you know that God has done something so that we may have eternal life anyway, and be with Him forever? To hear something like that ought to be welcomed as very good news. What we discover is that "God demonstrated His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" to take our judgment on Himself! Now, "if you confess with your mouth Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved (freed from judgment on your sin and given eternal life)!" When one really understands the significance of this, and accepts it for himself, then the really good news is that God will save us when we receive His Son, Jesus Christ as our own Savior and Lord!

So, there is some good news today after all! The first bit is that we can know of God's love today, right now. You and I can receive God's abundant life, right now. And we can be guaranteed, right now, a place with God forever. How can I be so sure? That's even more good news, because God Himself says so! "These things I have written unto you who believe in the Name of the Son of God, in order that you may know that you have eternal life."

There are a lot of discouraging and downright bad news items that hit us hard every day. But, it is not all distressing. As a matter of fact, there is some downright good news. I pray that no one will overlook or miss it!

Rev. Gordon is minister at the First Baptist Church of Montclair.

Rare maps on display at library

An exhibit of over 60 rare maps and atlases from the collection of Harlan J. Nissen is currently on display in the north and south lobbies of Honnold Library in Claremont.

Nissen, a member of the Honnold Library Society, has been collecting maps and atlases for over 20 years.

He has compiled what is probably the best private collection if its kind on the West Coast.

The exhibit is called "Four Centuries of Cartography." A map of particular interest to Californians is one of the American Southwest drawn in 1702 by the Austrian Jesuit missionary and colonialist Eusebio Francisco Kino.

Kino established conclusively that California was not an island and his map remained authoritative for over two centuries.

The exhibit will remain until Aug. 12. Library hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The library is located at Ninth Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

At its annual national convention in Chicago last month, the American Baha'i community elected its nine-member national governing body for 1981. In accordance with one of the major tenants of their religion — the oneness of mankind — the 171 delegates from across the continental United States elected a national governing body that reflects the rich ethnic and racial diversity of the American Baha'i community.

The men and women elected to the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States for 1981 are James F. White-knucklers now fly without fear

By LYNN SIMONEAU
Copley News Service

In an era of jet - propelled transportation and affordable airline rates, it seems incredible that more than 25 million people are afraid to fly.

And while a good percentage of them refuse to fly at any time, many are obliged to fly in extreme discomfort.

What kind of traumatic incidents could prompt such phobic reactions?

"The fear is not precipitated by validatable experiences," says Capt. T.W. "Slim" Cummings, a retired pilot and Fearful Flyers instructor for Pan American World Airways.

"The fear is a specter, a ghost. But fear is acquisitive. Once it implants itself, it spreads like weeds.

Four and a half years ago, Cummings began teaching Fearful Flyers seminars in major cities across the country.

In six two and one - half - hour sessions, Cummings strives to squash his students' fears through films, question - and - answer periods and visits to control towers and cockpits. He also teaches them how to use relaxation techniques.

More than 1,500 former Fearful Flyers have been successfully conditioned for flights on graduation day.

Recently, Valerie Stevens enrolled in a Los Angeles Fearful Flyers class. It cost her $138.

Stevens traced her fear of both flying and driving the freeways to the day she gave birth to a daughter.

"If I can lick the fear of flying, the rest will be a breeze," Stevens said while rubbing her sweaty palms together.

She and 94 fellow "FFs" were attending their final class before taking a graduation flight the next day.

Cummings stood at the front of the room and fielded last - minute questions from the audience.

"Should we buy insurance?" one voice yelled out. The question met with nervous laughter.

"How many of you have butterflies in your stomach right now?" Cummings asked. Three - fourths of the class raised their hands.

Cummings assured them they were not stupid nor would they make fools of themselves.

"Tomorrow is opportunity day," he said, scanning the audience with intense, blue eyes.

The room became reverently silent.

"The more your problems, the greater your victory."

Pause.

"Those who don't go tomorrow get to keep their problem."

Pause.

"Those who do go will see the lion turn into a pussycat."

Stevens was supposed to fly to Las Vegas in December for a realty agent's convention.

But she couldn't bring herself to do it.

"I wanted to drive or take a train, anything rather than fly," she recalled.

She has planned a number of trips with her husband since their daughter's birth. "But I always backed out for subconscious reasons."

At the mention of her FF graduation flight — only hours away — Stevens grew agitated.

"I'm viewing it as a celebration and expect to keep going forward, one step at a time."

"Once you gain momentum, don't stop," Cummings told his students after showing a film titled "In Celebration of Flight."

The lights dimmed and Cummings proceeded to lead the class through a relaxation exercise, one they would repeat before take-off the next day.

"Put your hand in your lap, wiggle your fanny into the seat, close your eyes and breath deeply," the congenial voice commanded.

"As you exhale, let go of your tensions. Just think of becoming as comfortable and passive as possible. Turn inward to your own strength."

Verbally, Cummings painted the picture of an imaginary flight about to be embarked upon.

"Visualize your walk toward the aircraft door with feelings of nervousness and excitement mixed together. Accept those feelings. Don't try to sort them out. You are birthing freedom."

Before disturbing the alpha state, Cummings makes a post - hypnotic suggestion.

"Tonight you'll be able to sleep soundly. Enjoy food before the flight."

The next afternoon, 82 out of 94 registered FFs boarded Pan Am's 747 Jet Clipper for a round-trip flight to San Francisco.

"I've been munching all day," Stevens eagerly told a traveling companion. "And usually I hardly sleep a wink before flights, but last night the minute I hit the pillow I was out."

Cummings' omnipresent voice suddenly resounded throughout the plane's intercom system.

"Take three deep breaths," he instructed. "Remember, if you're relaxed, you can't be fearful."

As the jet accelerated for takeoff, hands anxiously groped hands across the aisles.

Sporadic sobs and heavy sighs of relief gave way to spontaneous applause once the jet became airborne.

"It's really a great sensation," Stevens said aloud, beaming with pride. "My hands are drying out and everything."

At 35,000 feet, Stevens gazed out an airplane window for the very first time.

"This is great!" she said, admiring the coastal topography.

Classmates freely circulated through the plane, heartily congratulating one another.

I never saw so many smiles," Stevens remarked, grinning.

One hour later in San Francisco, 82 FFFs (now known as Former Fearful Flyers) jubilantly toasted each other with champagne.

Stevens proudly admired her graduation certificate. It noted that she had "successfully completed Pan Am's program for FFs and reluctantly but courageously left the planet Earth aboard a 747 Jet Clipper."

On the way home, Stevens thought over the day's experience.

"Gosh, I didn't panic!" she said.

But could she do it again without group support?

Shopping 2nd time around

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Even though we have talked about this before, sometimes we forget: "Buy all your findings, linings, etc., WHEN you purchase your fabric!" Sometimes we have to go back, right? If so, be a wise second-time-around shopper.

Take with you a large scrap of your fabric. (Trying to color match to a quarter-inch stripe 1 inch long can cause a nervous breakdown.) Cut a slit in the scrap of fabric as long as you will be making the buttonholes. Pin to the scrap a scrap of your lining, blouse fabric, trim, or anything else that will be used with the garment. Make a notation on the size and number of buttons you will need.

When looking at buttons, carefully work one of the buttons through the slit you have made in your scrap. This will give you a good look at how the button works on your fabric. Please do not bend the button card back!

If you are shopping for thread, hold the scrap of fabric in your hand and slide it along the thread spools watching for that perfect match. Please do not pull the thread end from the spool! Just remember that thread will stitch in a tad lighter than it appears on the spool. When color matching, if you have doubts, carry the items to a front window where you can look at them in a different light.

So often we do not have the time we would like in which to shop for a pattern. This means that we might settle for second-best, or might overlook a style that would have worked perfectly.

If your pattern-shopping time is limited why not invest in a home catalog from each of the major lines. These magazines do not, of course, feature all the patterns, but do give you a look at the new seasonal styles.

Or, ask at your fabric shop for the counter books that they take off the shelf when new ones come in. Some shops will charge a small fee for these books, others give them away.

With either the home catalog or the counter book on hand you can shop at home at your leisure, and then whip into the shop and pick up your pattern. What could be easier?

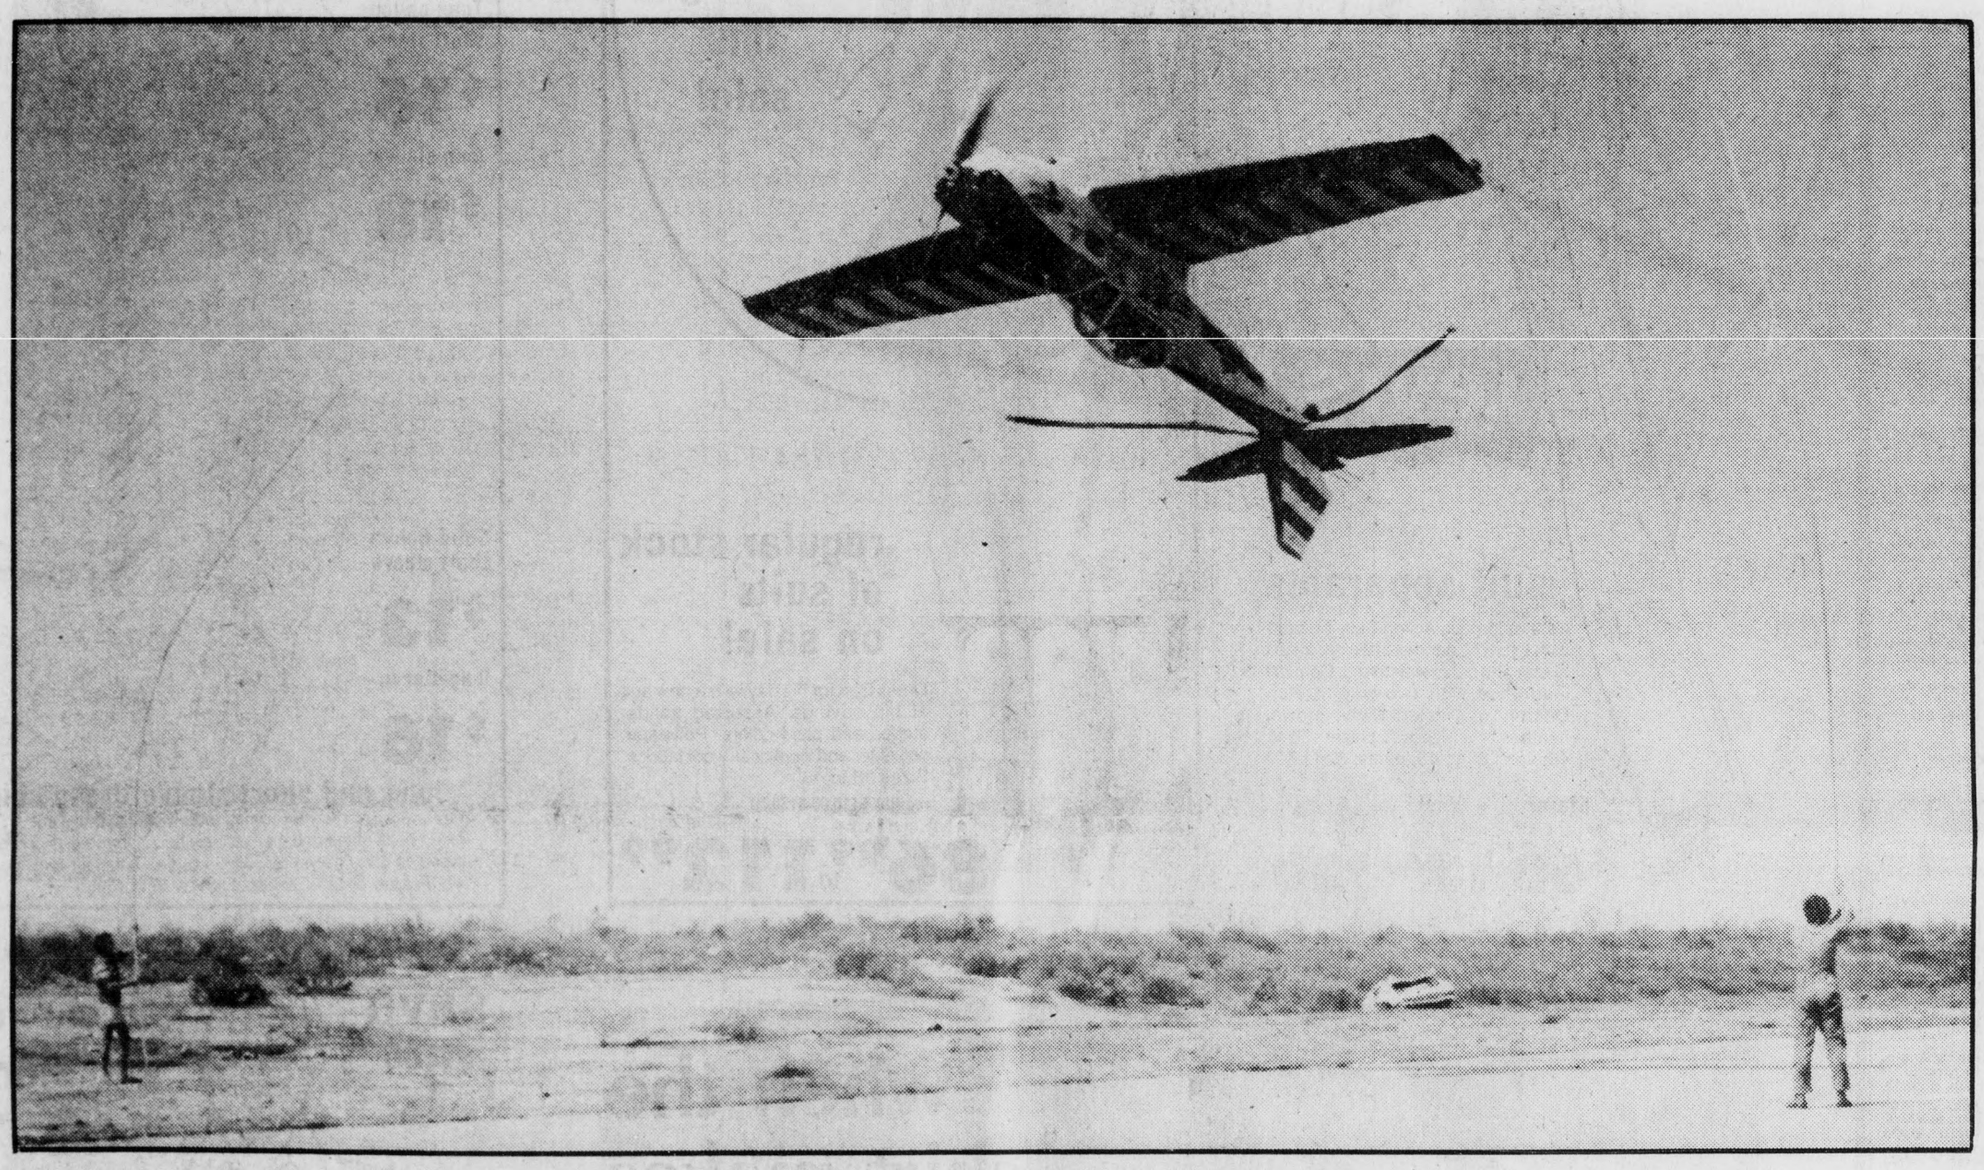
Best buddies: Art Scholl and Aileron.

AERIAL ACROBATICS



Art catches a ribbon 15 feet above the ground and upside-down.

Aileron hitches a ride, strapped to a "Golden Knight" sky diver.

They're one of the most unusual stunt pilot teams in the air, but Art Scholl of Rialto and his dog Aileron are the best of flying friends.

Art's specialty is aerobatics — stunt flying — and it keeps him in constant demand for air shows and movies.

He was nine years on the United States Aerobatics Team and won the United States National and International Aerobatic Championships in 1974.

His production company is kept busy year-round filming hair-raising airplane stunts for television shows like "CHiPs," "That's Incredible" and "The Incredible Hulk," or for movies like "The Great Waldo Pepper" and "Capricorn One."

The key to being a good stunt pilot is staying calm and being able to keep your orientation, according to Art. "You must always know where you are. You can at no time lose orientation. You should be able to close your eyes, do a roll and know where you are."

A tumbling triple somersault manuever in Art's "Super Chipmunk" airplane draws sighs of astonishment from most people but it's a common sight to Aileron.

In fact, Aileron is often Art's co-pilot.

Whenever Art is performing stunts for an air show, teaching an aerobatics class or filming a stunt Aileron is bound to be nearby.

Recently, she became the first known sky-diving dog, making a jump with a United States Army "Golden Knight" paratrooper.

"She's a real ham. She just loves flying, she likes the wind," Art said. He said she often wears a small aviator's cap with earphones when she flies with him. "As soon as we get on the ground she goes out on the wing. I hope she doesn't do it before I land."

Grandparenting

'Keeping in touch with delightful kingdom'

"The world of children is fascinating and entrancing, and adults who go through life without ever entering it are missing a great deal. For, when you really talk with a 6-year-old, you temporarily become 6 again yourself. As you grow older, your grandchild will help you grow younger at the same time, by keeping you in touch with the delightful kingdom of the young." — Dr. Fitzhugh Dodson

By ELAINE SMYTH
Copley News Service

A how-to book on being a grandparent? Come on, Dr. Dodson.

"Grandparents have been virtually ignored in our society," explained psychologist Fitzhugh Dodson during an interview. "They have been cast only in the role of baby sitters and, unfortunately, they have accepted this role. I think it's a great shame because grandparents have an enormous amount to give to their grandchildren."

In his most recent book, "How To Grandparent," Dodson cites some distressing statistics showing why American families have a greater need than in the past to embrace grandparents into their lives:

— One out of every eight children in the United States now lives in a single-parent home.

— In 1976, approximately 2.5 million children experienced the psychological shock of the breakup of their families through separation or divorce, compared with only 600,000 children experiencing broken homes 15 years earlier.

— Only 7 percent of the American population lives in what is often thought to be the typical American family — one with a breadwinner father, a homemaker mother and kids.

Dodson, in private psychology practice in Redondo Beach, said it was common a few years ago for parents, children and grandparents — the "extended family" — to live under one roof.

The demise of the old-fashioned extended family came about largely because of the intolerable stress of three generations living under the same roof, he theorized. And, as increasing numbers of American parents moved out of extended-family homes and into homes of their own, the importance of grandparents began to decline.

Dodson proposes what he terms "the new extended family" where the three generations live and work harmoniously but not under the same roof. Sometimes, not even in the same state.

"I proposed it because of the deficiencies of the isolated nuclear family where you just have parents and children. The nuclear family is not a very strong family today," with almost one-half of marriages ending in divorce.

In this new three-generational atmosphere, Dodson sees grandparents, parents and their children all learning from each other, nurturing each other, protecting each other from a society whose members are increasingly isolated from one another.

Dodson has some ideas about long-distance grandparenting that could apply as well to caring California aunts and uncles who yearn to develop a closer relationship with the enchanting 15-month-old nephew they met for the first time when they went back East for Christmas.

"You can send postcards because children get little mail. Or you can use a tape cassette. The advantage here is your grandchild or nephew can hear your voice. And you can send little surprise gifts so that he'll never know when he might get a gift from you which keeps him or her thinking about you.

"And certainly by the time the youngster is 8 or 9 the parents can send him on a jetliner back to visit you in the summer. And this is a real thrill for a youngster.

"We have just barely begun to tap the great positive influence that grandparents can have on grandchildren," the psychologist said.

He describes the new extended family as a two-way street, helping the grandparent as well.

"Successful aging seems to depend upon having interests which really fascinate you and keep you alive and kicking. What more fascinating thing can you have than a growing grandchild?"

Dodson said "doing what comes naturally" doesn't automatically result in being an effective grandparent. He adds that knowledge of psychological development from birth to age 21 is vital in order to become effective parents and grandparents.

Dodson addresses a number of other areas in today's society as evidence of the need for more enlightened grandparents. These include a growing generation of more sophisticated children, dealing with their divorced daughter who, in addition to having custody of the children, now is sharing her queen-size bed with a boyfriend, and the delicate issue of being a step-grandparent to that 4-year-old stranger your son's new wife brought with her to the recent marriage.

"What we have is a very fast-moving, fast-changing society in America with a lot of new behaviors which are being reluctantly accepted by either parents or grandparents. And which, previously, would not have been accepted at all. In some families these new behaviors and the feelings about them need to be talked out by both parents and grandparents. And this is precisely one of the things the new extended family is designed to do.

"Everybody is familiar with the phrase 'generation gap,' referring to the difficulties in communication between parents and their teenagers. But few people speak of the other very important 'generation gap' that exists — the one between grandparents and parents.

"Where there should be an easy and fruitful contribution of grandparents to the raising of grandchildren, all too often we find only alienation and suspicion on both sides.

"Grandparents may feel that parents shut them out from a health enjoyment of their grandchildren. Parents may believe that grandparents are interfering with the raising of their children. Both sides need help in bridging this gap," Dodson adds.

Police department adds four positions

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

The Claremont Police Department is adding two division commanders, a police lieutentant and a senior police sergeant.

The addition of the four positions is the result of an extended study based upon the recommendation of Chief Charles Lines in April 1980 that the department be reorganized as a part of the current year's budget process.

The four positions will be filled through closed promotional examinations within the department, according to Maureen Stapleton, city personnel officer. In addition, openings in the department which result from promotions will be filled by in-house promotions through examinations.

The four new positions are expected to be filled by mid-June.

The Claremont Police Department is recruiting additional officers to replace those who are promoted, Stapleton said. Competitive open examinations will be held for the replacement personnel.

These additional officers will probably be employed by Aug. 1, through the city's Personnel Department.

The increased cost, about $198,000, was included in the 1980-81 budget, Stapleton explained. But the additions have been delayed until the completion of the police study.

A report submitted jointly by Lines and City Manager Len Wood has received strong support from City Council members.

The police study included data regarding the department operations which identified two major problem areas.

The first of these, Wood said, was a high response time for emergency calls. The study indicated the response time for this type of call in surrounding police agencies was substantially lower than what is now experienced in Claremont.

Conversely, Wood noted, there has been a lack of supervision within the station when the sergeant's presence is required in the field.

Wood said the addition of the four new positions should meet the needs of the community for the next two years.

Park will have 4 fields

Four ballfields suitable for both baseball and soccer will be included in the first phase of the Chino Community Park whose construction is scheduled to begin in August.

The initial improvement also will include a tot lot, restrooms, a 180-stall parking lot, a concession facility, open space and peripheral landscaping, said Glen Rojas, parks and recreation director.

He estimated the cost of developing the first phase — 15 acres of the 40-acre site — at $900,000. Most of the funds will come from state and federal grants. When completed, the park cost will be about $3 million.

The park site at Central and Edison avenues is owned by the California Institution for Men. Since the land is not used, the state Department of Corrections agreed to lease it to the city for $1 a year for a park that will serve as a buffer between the prison and the community.

Youth jobs available

More than 100 youths between the ages of 14 and 21 are being sought for a variety of jobs in the summer youth employment program operated by the Bonita school district.

The jobs program, sponsored by public agencies and nonprofit organizations, is funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. The youths will be employed from four to six hours a day for about 10 weeks. Pay is $3.35 per hour.

Enrollment is determined by family income level. Those under the age of 18 will be required to have work permits. Handicapped youth within the age group are eligible regardless of family income level.

Applications are reviewed by the program staff on a first-come basis. Eligible students are notified to come to the office for further processing, including job interviews with potential work site supervisors. An effort is made to match participants with available jobs.

Application forms are available at Ramona and Lone Hill intermediate schools; Bonita and San Dimas high school career centers and the CETA office at the district Education Center, 115 W. Allen Ave., San Dimas.

The program is expected to begin June 15, so students are urged to apply immediately.

For more information persons may call the district Education Center at 599-6787.

4-day work week at Cal Poly

In a continuing effort to conserve energy and to reduce utility costs, Cal Poly Pomona will again implement a four-day, 10-hour-day workweek for the university operations this summer from June 15 through Sept. 3.

In addition to the energy savings and reductions in expenses, employees and students will reduce fuel consumption by traveling round-trip to the campus four instead of five days a week.

During the 10-hour-day workweek, the majority of Cal Poly offices will be open Monday-Thursday, 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Classes will be scheduled from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Most of the 85 university buildings will be shut down and utilities turned off after Thursday evening classes. There will, however, be exceptions such as the new science building that houses the computer center and various animal colonies, the administration building, the library, residence halls, Los Olivos and the Kellogg West Center for Continuing Education.

General service areas, offices and departments maintaining other than the straight 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., four-day schedule and their hours of operation are:

—The University Union building will be open Monday-Thursday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. with its various facilities operating within these hours and its business office open from 7:15 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Thursday. Food service will be available at Union Station from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday-Thursday.

—The Faculty/Staff Dining Room in the Campus Center will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday-Thursday.

—Cal Poly's police department business office will operate on a regular schedule and will provide 24-hour service.

—Kellogg West will adhere to its normal 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. work schedule and remain open evenings and weekends when conferences and meetings are in session.

—Sales hours for various agricultural operations are as follows: fruit unit, Tuesday-Thursday, 3:30-5:30 p.m.; vegetable unit, Tuesday-Thursday, 3:30-5:30 p.m.; eggs and poultry unit, Tuesday-Thursday, 4:30-5:30 p.m.; nursery unit, Wednesday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; and meat unit, Monday-Thursday, 12-4:30 p.m.

Hiking and biking

Several San Gabriel Valley residents will hike into the high Sierra Nevadas and bicycle along the California Central Coast this summer.

These week-long challenges are part of the Treks for Life and Breath sponsored by the American Lung Association of Los Angeles County and the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

Participants will hike 100 kilometers across the Sierra Mountains while raising donations to support such American Lung Association projects as a summer camp for asthmatic children.

Small groups of hikers will leave every Saturday beginning July 18 and continuing through the end of August, and anyone 14 years of age and older is invited to participate. The week of Aug. 15-22 has been reserved for a medical professionals trek where doctors and nurses can receive continuing education credit for a medical course entitled "Wilderness Physiology."

Two bike trips are planned for the last two weeks in July where bicycle riders will travel 500 kilometers through the roads along the Central California Coast.

Orientation meetings for interested backpackers and bikers in the San Gabriel Valley area are planned for June 3 and 17, July 1, 15 and 29 at the Covina City Park, Recreation Building, 303 N. Valencia St., Covina, where information on the summer treks will be available. Transportation, food and guides are provided to both hikers and bikers at no cost.

For more information about the American Lung Association's Backpacking and Bicycling Treks for Life and Breath, interested persons may call (213) 484-9300.

CITY OF MONTCLAIR
NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF GEORGE RESERVOIR PARK

RECEIPT OF PROPOSALS: Sealed proposals will be received at the Office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Montclair, California until 10:00 A.M. on Friday, July 3, 1981, for the furnishing of all labor, materials and equipment for the construction of George Reservoir Park. The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the Council Chambers, 5111 Benito Street, Montclair, California at 10:00 A.M., on the date above mentioned.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK: The entire work is contained in a single bid schedule. The work consists of landscape improvement including irrigation system, landscape planting and chain link fencing; parking lot/bike trail improvements consisting of A.C. paving, curbs, sidewalks, redwood header and other appurtenances required by the plans and specifications.

COMPLETION OF WORK: All work shall be completed within forty-five (45) working days after the date of the execution of the contract by the City and upon acceptance of the work a sixty (60) calendar day maintenance period is required for maintenance of landscaping.

A deposit of $10.00 is required for each set of specifications with accompanying drawings. This deposit will be refunded on the return of the plans and specifications in good condition within thirty (30) days after the proposals are opened. The specification is entitled "SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF GEORGE RESERVOIR PARK."

PROPOSAL GUARANTEE: Each proposal must be accompanied by cash or by a cashier's or certified check or by a bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the amount of the bid price, made payable to the order of the City Clerk of the City of Montclair, as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. The faithful performance bond shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate of the prices stated in the proposal. The labor and material bond shall be in the sum of not less than fifty percent (50%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the prices stated in the proposal. In addition to the above and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

WAGE RATES: Bids shall be made in accordance with the prevailing hourly rate of per diem wages for this locality and project as determined by the Director of Industrial Relations pursuant to Labor Code Section 1170 et seq., a copy of which is on file with the City Engineer at 5111 Benito Street in accordance with the provisions of Labor Code Section 1773.2 which prevailing hourly rates of wages is made a part of this notice by reference as though fully set forth herein.

OWNER'S RIGHTS RESERVED. The City Council of the City of Montclair reserves the right to reject any and all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make awards as the interest of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Montclair, California.
